RE: Keep My Voice Citizens' Initiative Application

Dear Lieutenant Governor Cox,

As the sponsors of the Keep My Voice Citizens' Initiative, we submit this application to your office to commence circulating a statewide initiative petition.

The purpose of the Keep My Voice initiative is to: 1) safeguard the right of the people of Utah to associate freely with the political party of their choosing, 2) protect the people's and their political parties' rights in nominating and selecting the candidates and leaders of their choosing, and 3) insure that the right of the people to meaningfully assemble in their local communities and neighborhood caucuses is preserved.

These fundamental rights have already been significantly diminished with the passage of Utah Senate Bill 54 in 2014 and are further put in jeopardy by its "Direct Primary" companion initiative sponsored by Count My Vote. The damage that has already been done to Utah's historic neighborhood caucus system, that is driven so heavily by neighborhood elected delegates, disenfranchises thousands of grassroots participants and voters who have willingly and diligently engaged in that political process for almost a century.

For these and the following reasons, Keep My Voice feels impelled to introduce the Freedom of Association Initiative.

CAUCUSES ARE A FUNDAMENTALLY AMERICAN METHOD OF PRESERVING REPUBLICAN GOVERNMENT

Alexander Hamilton, in a speech urging ratification of the U.S. Constitution, boldly challenged any notion that America was intended to be a direct democracy. He remarked that, “[i]t has been observed that a pure democracy if it were practicable would be the most perfect government. Experience has proved that no position is more false than this. The ancient democracies in which the people themselves deliberated never possessed one good feature of government. Their very character was tyranny; their figure deformity.”¹

Supporting this repudiation of direct democracy, Benjamin Franklin, after the Constitutional convention, famously remarked to the attendant crowd that America was “[a] Republic, if you can keep it.”²

Caucuses and conventions, as historic methods of representative selection, go hand in hand with our Republic and are older than the United States herself. Author and historian William Hogeland observed that American founders such as Samuel Adams and John Adams used caucuses to organize local governing bodies that the governor could not to shut down.³ These same caucuses would be used to organize the American Revolution itself.⁴

Town and neighborhood caucuses would become woven into the very fabric of American political organization. After his presidency, Thomas Jefferson made it his political goal and passion to divide the nation into small “wards.” He reflected that when each person shared in the direction of his “ward-republic” they would “...let the heart be torn out of his body sooner than his power be wrested from him by a Caesar or Bonaparte.”⁵

By wards, Jefferson was not thinking in LDS congregational terms but of a politically empowered system of mini-republics within every American community. Not coincidentally, the LDS people were similarly committed to this type of political organizing and after arriving in the Salt Lake valley quickly set up a system of town and local caucuses.⁶

Utah has ever been a caucus state except for one historical lapse when for approximately a decade the state shifted to a direct primary system. After twice running and losing his party nomination then state Senator Herbert Maw promoted legislation that mandated direct primaries. Not coincidentally, he subsequently won the nomination for Governor of Utah.⁷

Within a decade of the implementation of this direct primary experiment in the 1940's, cries arose for its repeal. The Deseret News editorial board lamented that the cost of primary runoffs was high and voter participation had dropped to a historic low.⁸ They further observed that the direct primary system had made it possible for "political machines to select candidates..." who "...do not adequately represent the party whose standards they bear."⁹ Without some form of caucus and convention system the state risked "crooks and rogues" being "swept into office."¹⁰

SB 54 AND COUNT MY VOTE WOULD ELIMINATE UTAH'S HISTORICAL CAUCUS TRADITION

Despite Utah's and America's deep foundation in the caucus system there are those who seek to replay Utah's failed affair with direct primaries. A group calling themselves Count My Vote ("CMV") has lobbied heavily for the elimination of Utah's historic caucus system and seeks to once again implement a direct primary. Count My Vote (also going by the name of Alliance for Good Government, CMV PAC and Friends of Count My Vote) is a veritable who's who list of political power brokers and high dollar political donors.

CMV has tried to convince Utah, contrary to historical experience, that their efforts would increase voter participation.¹¹ They have also tried to package their effort as expansive of party and voter choice rather than as a restrictive mandate.

While CMV's marketing efforts have been silent about the desire to narrowly craft Utah's laws to restrict free association of parties they have not been shy about their method of doing so, i.e. seeking to implement through legislation or initiative a "direct primary election."¹²

Count My Vote has found friends in the Utah Legislature to help them implement their direct primary plan. In 2014, as a direct result of the efforts of CMV, the Utah Legislature passed Senate Bill 54 (SB 54)¹³. Not coincidentally, the sponsor of that bill, in one year alone, received $7500.00 directly from Count My Vote's political action committee and $18,500.00 total from their financial backers.¹⁴

Many of the political parties in Utah have leveled legal challenges at SB 54 as violative of their freedom of association. Particularly, the Utah Republican Party (the "Utah GOP") is locked in a legal battle with the State of Utah before the United States Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals over the constitutionality of SB 54. The Utah GOP argues that SB 54 is unconstitutional and that it has "burdened its rights by imposing a candidate-selection procedure that contradicts the URP's established procedures."¹⁵

CMV's false pretense of increased choice quickly fell away under legal scrutiny. After the adoption of SB 54 government lawyers from the State of Utah affirmatively represented to the US District Court that parties could choose between a nomination convention or a primary petition method but later argued the exact opposite admitting that the purpose of SB 54 was forced compliance into one system and one system only.¹⁶

The U.S. District Court of Utah and the Utah Supreme Court have both acknowledged that SB 54 did mandate compliance from Utah's political parties. The U.S. District Court stated that a Utah political party “...must permit its members to seek its nomination “by either or both” the convention and the signature process.” Utah Republican Party v. Cox, 2016 UT 17, ¶ 4, 373 P.3d 1286, 1287 (emphasis added).

So, if they only permit nomination by convention, they would be a QPP under 12(d)."19 To which Defendants' counsel answered: "Yes," later confirming: "You can be a QPP by providing either of those methods or both."20 (20. Id. at 35:23, 36:8-10. Defendants' counsel stated that he viewed § 101(d) as conflicting with another provision from SB54, § 20A-9-406(3), which he argued, "reaffirm[ed] the right of the individual,"20 explaining how he anticipated that would "be the next lawsuit." Id. at 35:4-15, 35:24-36:5.

This acknowledgment by the Court of this mandate is no surprise to anyone who has followed the less than public workings of Count My Vote or read their current proposed initiative that further exacerbates the problems of SB 54 with even more heavy handed and opportunistic mandates including provisions that are likely unconstitutional when viewed in light of the most recent United States Supreme Court rulings.

COUNT MY VOTE HAS CAUSED UNPRECEDENTED DIVISIVENESS, CONFUSION AND SEEKS TO STIFLE FIRST AMENDMENT RIGHTS

CMV’s hallmark thus far has been divisiveness and discord. Not only does it uproot a fundamental aspect of American representative democracy, but it has created unprecedented discord among the organizations it claims to want to help. It has touted publicly its desire to provide “more choice” for political parties and candidates and to “enhance candidate access” to the ballot but their latest initiative pushes over the line into impermissible intrusions into the constitutional rights of free associations while also creating an entirely new and costly election between the primary and the general election called a runoff election. This is an unnecessary waste of taxpayer money.

The CMV initiative eliminates the substantive participation of Utah’s neighborhood delegates via the historic caucus system that was first set up as part of the territorial governance of Utah by early Latter Day Saint leaders. Specifically, it forces an elections officer to prevent any candidate from listing their party’s endorsement unless that candidate has been nominated under the CMV direct primary system. Under CMV’s initiative, Utah’s historic neighborhood caucus system will be rendered meaningless as the traditional state and county delegates will no longer serve any practical function in screening and selecting candidates. State and county delegate driven nominating conventions, for accessing the general election ballot, are neither recognized nor allowed under CMV’s proposed law.

To add insult to injury, CMV’s latest initiative seeks also to force government elections officers to designate a certain individual as a member of a political party even if the political party disagrees.¹⁷ This is where CMV most expressly pushes the bounds of legality under the First Amendment.

By forcing election officers to list non-party selected candidates with the party name on the ballot, the proposed law fails to clearly convey that the listed candidates and their preferred parties are not necessarily associated. This strikes against the Supreme Court's recent decision in Washington State Grange v. Washington State Republican Party, 128 S. Ct. 1184 (2008). The Respondents in Washington State Grange (the Washington State Republican Party) asserted that under a CMV-like candidate party preference scheme, voters would assume that candidates on the ballot were the party's preferred nominee; or that the voters would assume that the parties associate with, and approve of, the nominees. Id. at 1186.

Justice Thomas, delivering the opinion of the Court, indicated that such a concern was not ripe, it was still speculative but in their concurrence Justices Roberts and Alito observed that "[i]f the ballot is designed in such a manner that no reasonable voter would believe that the candidates listed there are nominees or members of, or otherwise associated with, the parties the candidates claimed to 'prefer,' the I-872 primary system would likely pass constitutional muster. However, '...if the ballot merely lists the candidates' preferred parties next to the candidates' names, or otherwise fails clearly to convey that the parties and the candidates are not necessarily associated, the I-872 system would not survive a First Amendment challenge.'" Id. at 1197.

The CMV initiative, stacked upon SB 54, creates this very quandary discussed above and fails to protect the first amendment rights of Utah's citizens and free associations. Utah need not invite any further divisiveness in this regard.

Government mandates that override a citizen's free participation in a political party, and the oxymoronic regulation of the free association of political parties themselves is not new in the American political arena. Ever since the early mid twentieth century, when the Progressive Party exerted its' influence (so aptly seen in California) to use direct primaries as a "vital weapon" in their battle against traditional caucuses and conventions, states like California have slipped further and further into the type of direct democracy so abhorred by our Founding Fathers.¹⁸

¹⁷ Leavitt, Michael, Matheson, Norma, Miller, Gail. "Count My Vote citizen's initiative petition." Letter to The Honorable Spencer Cox. 8 Nov. 2017. MS. Salt Lake City, Utah.

¹⁸ Lightfoot v. Eu, 964 F.2d 865, 872-73 (9th Cir. 1992), as amended (July 6, 1992)

Such meddling is not in accord with Utah's history, Utah's respect for original constitutional republicanism, or with longstanding constitutional principles.

THE KEEP MY VOICE INITIATIVE WILL RESTORE AND SAFEGUARD
FREE ASSOCIATION AND ALLOW FOR THE CONTINUANCE OF MEANINGFUL NEIGHBORHOOD CAUCUSES

Keep My Voice seeks to restore Utah's ability to meaningfully gather in their political associations and neighborhood meeting without undue government mandates and influence. Because the legislature has not acted to correct their error and instead has combined with large money special interest donors to diminish our constitutionally protected rights to freely assemble and associate with the political organizations of our choice, we believe it is imperative to repeal SB 54, which is the purpose of this initiative.

Sincerely,

Dave Bateman

FREEDOM OF ASSOCIATION INITIATIVE

1 LONG TITLE

2 General Description:

3 This bill amends provisions relating to elections.

4 Statement of Intent:

5 For generations Utah communities have gathered every two years in their local neighborhood caucus
6 meeting to discuss, deliberate and vote for the delegates who will accept the responsibility to serve their local
7 community in thoroughly reviewing candidates for elected office. The neighborhood caucus system requires
8 candidates to speak directly to voters and assures that political party nominees are sufficiently vetted and
9 supported by people not special interest.

10 In direct primary elections candidates are required to reach tens of thousands of people in a very short
11 period. This is impossible and so candidates are forced to raise large sums of money, primarily from lobbyists
12 and special interest groups, which in turn spawns impersonal campaigns that focus on television ads, automated
13 phone calls and junk mail instead of on direct contact between real people. The result is a system of special
14 interest and election profiteering. Government should not be in the business of dictating how constitutionally
15 protected organizations and associations govern their membership and process.

16 Utah citizens should remain free to choose how they participate in their political party of choice, how 17 they govern their party and in turn the method by which they select their candidates for elected office. The 18 people and their political parties should not be forced to choose how their candidates will access the primary-
19 election ballot. This initiative will allow the people of Utah, in their respective political parties, to determine
20 how their party's nomination for elective office may be sought. It will also remove the forced provision that
21 members of registered political parties must allow the political party's nomination to be obtained by signature
22 collection.

23 Utah's neighborhood caucus system is a civic tradition that has served our state well in producing
24 responsible government and maximizing grassroots citizen participation. It merits protection and preservation
25 and the citizens of this state will make their voice heard on this Utah tradition through this initiative.

Lieutenant Governor Cox,

Submitted below is the Governor's Office of Management and Budget's fiscal estimate for the Keep My Voice/Freedom of Association initiative:

The Governor's Office of Management and Budget estimates that the law proposed by the Freedom of Association Citizens' Initiative Petition would result in a one-time fiscal expense of $30,000 and on-going savings of between $30,000 and $245,000 every two years by eliminating signature verification costs. Signature verification costs were roughly $30,000 in 2016. If all candidates had submitted signatures, this cost would have been $245,000.

The one-time expense of $30,000 is needed for the cost of posting information regarding the proposed initiative in Utah's statewide newspapers and for printing additional pages in the voter information pamphlet.

Should you have any questions, please contact Richie Wilcox, Fiscal Operations Specialist, at (801) 538-1702.

Sincerely,

Kristen Cox
Executive Director

KEEP MY VOICE ANNOUNCES 2020 INITIATIVE, OPTS FOR NON-SUBMISSION FOR CURRENT PETITION

LEHI, UT — April 13, 2018 — Keep My Voice (KMV), a nonprofit group that advocates to preserve and strengthen Utah's Neighborhood Caucuses, has decided not to submit petition signatures to be validated for their Freedom of Association Initiative.

While other groups began collecting signatures as early as the summer of 2017, Keep My Voice started mid-February. "We knew when we started the petition process it would be an uphill climb. But, we recognized the urgency to inform Utahns about the great benefits Neighborhood Caucuses offer to our communities and the harm Count My Vote is doing to our state politics," said Keep My Voice Co-Founder and Director Brandon Beckham.

Dave Bateman, also a Keep My Voice Co-Founder, expressed, "What we accomplished in just two short months has exceeded all expectation. The outpouring of support from both Republicans, Democrats and unaffiliated voters has demonstrated the passion Utahns feel for the Caucus-Convention System. We are now well organized, funded and poised to defend the Freedom of Association for all Utah's political parties."

Keep My Voice has made significant strides in educating citizens about how the Caucus-Convention System gives every neighborhood a strong representative voice, removes big money from elections and holds elected officials accountable.

Support has poured in from across the Beehive state for the KMV movement. "We want to thank the Utah Republican State Central Committee, county party leaders and the army of passionate volunteers sharing our message. They believe restoring Utah's Neighborhood Caucuses is worth fighting for," says Beckham. "This is just the beginning. Keep My Voice is already preparing to launch a new initiative in 2020."
